

- 22 -

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

The field received starting at least one source of electromagnetic field in a determined position of the territory covered by a communication network has a plurality of field sources estimated on the basis of a propagation model. The model in question is modified, for example, in parametric fashion according to the topology of said field sources. Preferential application to locating mobile terminals, in particular in view of the provision of services based on location.